

Monash University David Syme Business School (Building N)

Construction of a new seven level teaching and administration building at Monash University Caulfield campus.

The major project was undertaken within the heart of the busy campus with works coordinated so as to minimise impact to university operations. Designed by Denton Corker Marshall, the building was completed in 1997 and along with the School of Art & Design - also constructed by Kane - forms a cornerstone to the Caulfield campus.
