Austin BioResources Centre

This $15m laboratory facility was completed in September 2009 following a fourteen month construction period. The project was delivered by fixed lump sum contract.

The Austin BioResources Project is located near the corner of Studley Rd and Banksia St. in Heidelberg. The project consisted of the construction of a new 2,107m² three level state-of-the-art bio-resource facility at the Austin Hospital. The facility contains PC2 laboratories for the use of Austin Health, The University of Melbourne and The Ludwig Institute.
